My dear Miss Weston

Wishing for you to the last moment, leaves me no time for writing to you which is to me a pleasure lost. I have only one instant to tell you that the Items on the portfolios were gathered in Sir Fowle

MS. A. 9.2.25. 32

Buxton's favorite retreat from the cares and toils that now wholly engrossed him in fighting the battle of slavery. I brought them thence with a deep feeling of interest, and hope that a portion of our love and respect for him exists with the Americans which may render these memorials of him interesting to them.
The style of them may be novel, and if so induce you some to buy them. I have sent them in single sheets but they will look better when tied together - I hope also that our decorations in leather may be new, and produce a desired sale. Perhaps you will kindly let us know, at some future time with respect to both these articles, as it would be a guide to us in our selection for the next years Bayard, if life and health are given us to work for it. with how deep an interest I do so I cannot tell you, or how earnest my prayers that your labor may be crowned with success.

Believe me
most sincerely yr
Emma Winkler
